

The Power of a Seat at the Table

Ask any healthcare organization throughout the country. They will tell you that the reason they have succeeded or even simply survived is because they have a certain way of doing things. Their overall notion is accurate to a certain extent. No two systems or even individual hospitals are alike. What's efficient here isn't always going to optimize anything over there.

What's missing in the dialogues about what's working and what's not is an outside perspective.

Take your operating room's anesthesiology care team, for instance. What if you could bring in someone who is not only respected for their practices in the industry but also has a proven track record with multiple organizations throughout the country implementing smarter technology and staffing models? That partnership would have the power to:

1

ELEVATE QUALITY

Through a holistic evaluation of your anesthesia protocols and practices, there are opportunities to reduce lengths of stay, improve monitoring and treatments, increase patient engagement, and properly implement better protocols and ERAS programs.

IMPROVE EFFICIENCIES

Utilizing industry-leading tools to identify ways to reduce unnecessary preoperative testing, optimize blood management programs, and streamline scheduling to ensure fewer first-case start delays.

PROVIDE PHYSICIAN VALUE

The expertise an outside organization can provide to physicians is second to none. Bringing in additional clinicians many of whom are double-boarded and have subspecialty training ensures that, no matter the case, you're both counseled and covered. This isn't anecdotal. It's proven.
